

A COURSE OF STUDY IN SPIRITUAL FORMATION, 2009

*Prayer is a means of descending to the level of the heart and of finding God.
Benedict 6th century*

School of Christian Prayer - Christian Spirituality

Meditation was at the heart of the spiritual exercises used to develop virtue, the wellspring of the holy life. Self-knowledge was an important goal of meditation, and self-examination was a primary means to that end. The examen has solid roots in Scripture and in Christian tradition. Spiritual newness, growing daily communion with God, increased ability to serve, and many other gifts of grace flow from the daily prayer of examen.

To grow in love of the God whom the heart seeks. Ignatius of Loyola 16th century

What is the examen? How do I pray it? Will it be helpful for me? Is it possible in a life as busy as mine? What will assist me to pray it? What obstacles might I encounter in the practice of the examen? Can I overcome such obstacles? If so, how? What spiritual fruit will I experience in praying the examen?

Prayer is named meditation until it has produced the honey of devotion, and then it is converted into contemplation. Frances de Sales 16th century
